Many companies offer services to follow the location of your phone by sending SMS messages to it. This can be used to track down a stolen phone, or just to see where someone you care about is at any given time. It should come as no surprise that some cell providers are offering the same service for SIM cards, without requiring an accompanying smartphone. This post will help you decide if tracking your SIM card this way is right for you!

The "6 Cons of Working from Home" Blog Post Example Please note that these are not real blog posts, but they may serve as references for this assignment. I will give a few examples of a new "6 Cons of Working from Home" Blog post.

Blog Post Example 1: The first blog post for this entry will be about the cons of working from home. You can start it by saying that there are many more benefits to working from home than there are cons, but it is important to be aware of the downsides as well. Also add in a little information about working mothers and say that they have an especially hard time with this one. Next add in some statistics showing how many mothers work from home and how many don't and why they do or don't. Also talk about how much more prone to divorce they are than their employed counterparts. Finish the post by saying that some of the advantages of working from home include being able to control your schedule, work where you want, and not have to worry about commute or lunch breaks. The blog post will be done with all "H's", but they may be replaced with "w's" for a blog post about working from home.

Blog Post Example 2: The second blog post for this entry will be about the cons of working from home. You can start it by saying that most people enjoy the convenience and flexibility of working from home, but there are some downsides to consider as well. Add in some good reasons about how working from home can cause resentment in the family, such as feeling like you earn more than them or deciding what to do on a Saturday night. Finish the post by saying that most of the cons revolve around the relationship between your family and your work.

Blog Post Example 3: The third blog post for this assignment is going to be about what a blogger is supposed to do when they only have a few minutes of downtime. Start by talking about how most bloggers work from home, and since they are used to being able to pause when they see their kids, it can become easy to fall off schedule when writing. Add in some good reasons about how it's hard for a blogger to get back into gear when they "waste" time on unnecessary things between writing sessions. Finish the post by saying that your best option is to queue up a number of blog posts and work until you hit a stopping point. A good example would be having a dozen pre-written blog posts with the subject lines already in place. Then, when you can't go on with what you're doing, just grab one from the queue and start writing!

Blog Post Example 4: The fourth blog post for this assignment is going to be about what a blogger is supposed to do when life gets busy.
